

To whom it may concern,

Last year, I had spent a few months with two other Dutch schools both in a group setting and an individual setting. Learning Dutch had become a chore and I started to lose enthusiasm. Then a friend recommended Bally.

Bally's teaching methods are non -didactic, empathic, responsive, flexible and fun. He even manages to test me in a non- threatening but stretching way. I find myself using Dutch in more and more conversations, on the phone and in the wider community.

Bally has a fantastic positive approach and I think he is acutely aware if anyone in the group is having a bad day and varies his style accordingly. I really do appreciate his authentic teaching style.

I would have absolutely no hesitation in recommending Bally, whatever your needs, age or level.
